LIFE.

This life is more than what it seems
To those who strive not for the best,
Whose days flit by like idle dreams,
Unhonored and unkept.

Ah, life's no dream though fast it speeds,
But good or ill it soon is gone—
And each must answer for his deeds,
At God's eternal throne.

One side of life is true and bright,
The other side is dark and vile;
Then why not choose the ways of light—
And shun the paths of guile.

You'll find the best companions there,
The true, the noble, and the brave;
No blasting sorrows—no despair—
Nor longings for the grave.

O, make thy choice, and use it well!
While thou art blest with ample time;
Be not as they to whom there fell
A blight upon their prime.

Be wise and choose the better side,
It's happiness ere long you'll find;
O, let determination's pride
E'er keep you thus inclined.

One side leads downward—at the end
Are shadows of eternal night;
Meanwhile the other doth ascend,
Into the realm of light.

—M. C. TYLER, Chaptin, Ky.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, August 30.

The strange transformation that has taken place in Mr. Roosevelt within the past few months—his conversion from the fierce hussar, besworded and bespurred, seeking the bubble reputation even at the cannon's mouth, into the meek and peace-loving civilian wrapped in gentle silence, is generally and respectfully regarded as a mere political dodge. It is assumed that wholly for the purpose of getting votes he is making a belated effort to live down his violent past.

His conduct continues to be a favorite topic of conversation and discussion here in the National Capital wherever politicians of either party do congregate.

This assumption that Roosevelt may be doing this repression act for effect, may be doing a cruel injustice to an awakened and repentant man. Goaded by a sense of wrong, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt may be long burst into indignant speech and explain that he was in reality the quiet, inoffensive and modestly retiring person we now behold, and that the other Roosevelt with whom the world had grown familiar was the creation of Loeb, his secretary since he became Governor of New York, and who seems to be his evil genius in every way.

Through the malefic influence of Loeb, he may tell us how he was fired with warlike ambition. It was Loeb who induced him to charge up San Juan Hill and shoot a craven and fleeing Spaniard in the back. It was Loeb who impelled him to make a khaki campaign for the Governorship of New York. It was Loeb who prompted him to instruct Admiral Dewey in naval matters, to insult Admiral Schley, to retire General Miles after a lifetime of military service without a word of thanks, and to flood the country with photographs of Theodore Roosevelt in his Rough Rider uniform; Theodore Roosevelt in fringed buckskin, rifle in hand, with his moccasined foot on a dead bear; photographs of Theodore Roosevelt, cowboy, on his poney, with pistols and lariat all complete. It was Loeb who hypnotized him into delivering anti-trust speeches which eventuated in no useful action, but has had the distressing effect of repelling trust checks from the campaign fund. It was Loeb who incited him to those early addresses favoring tariff reform, which, in humbleness of spirit, he has since recanted. It was Loeb who gave him the big stick which he shook at the Spanish-American republics and in the face of the rest of the world, leaving the United States not a single friend south of the Rio Grande. It was Loeb who put him up to the absurdity of uttering hundreds of orations on purity in politics and high-minded honesty in office, and at the same time to do business right along with Quay and Addicks and Platt, or any other boss with a machine.

It was Loeb who had the limitless effrontery to supply him with the phrase, "Words are good when backed by deeds, and only so." It was Loeb who caused him to whoop about having all the departments "as clean as a hound's tooth," and then to bring the investigation of the Post Office to a lame and impotent conclusion. It was Loeb who induced him to steal Panama from Columbia, when a better route for the interoceanic canal could have been honestly obtained. It was Loeb who instigated him to undermine discipline in the army by jumping Dr. Wood into a major-generalship over the heads of hundreds of educated officers whose lives had been spent in the service. It was Loeb who injected into his brain the fancy to have the navy down to Oyster Bay for the amusement of the children, but at great cost to the taxpayer. It was Loeb who, night and day, whispered into his ear the notion that it would charm the American people to have their president model himself on Germany's imperial War Lord. It was Loeb who counselled him to substitute executive orders for laws of Congress. It was Loeb who advised him to accept free special trains from favor-seeking railroad corporations, and to refuse an American flag from a Boston girl on the ground that it would be unbecoming in the President to accept gifts. It was Loeb who filled him with an arrogance which did not stop short of lecturing venerable Senators as if they were ignorant and naughty schoolboys. It was Loeb who inspired him to be a dictator and blame and praise and exhort, as if all wisdom and virtue were concentrated in one person, until the country grew tired, very tired, of strenuousness and egotism and swagger, and longed for a rest from Theodore Roosevelt.

If the President shall offer his fellow citizens this explanation of why he has looped the loop from what he was to what he now wishes them to think him—the silent, thoughtful and discreet statesman—he will, of course, reveal by what means he has rescued himself from the satanic arts of Loeb and reduced that matchless Mephistopheles to his proper place as a simple secretary. And it is to be taken for granted also that Mr. Roosevelt will endeavor to give satisfactory assurances that, in the unlikely event of his election, he will be able to resist a resumption by Loeb of his magical influence over the Presidential mind and conduct.

Perhaps the best guaranty Mr. Roosevelt could furnish that, if accorded four years more in the White House, he would not loop the loop backward and become again his former self would be to discharge Loeb, or put him to death. If allowed to live and serve as secretary, his sorcery might prevail and draw from their retirement the khaki uniform, the sword and the big stick.

Freed from the time being from the malign enchantment of Loeb, Mr. Roosevelt is apparently ashamed of his past, but it is well understood by physicians that one who has been bewitched is always in danger of falling again under the spell. On the whole, therefore, it will be safer and kinder to return Mr. Roosevelt to private life. The White House is not good for him. It affects the head.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief, was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies, "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY,

Lexington. - - Kentucky.

The Agricultural and Mechanical (State College) of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, horticultural, chemical, biological, mathematical, physical, normal school, classical, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, civil engineering, mining engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a degree. Post graduate studies are also provided, leading to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern.

The Legislature appropriated $60,000 for a college home for young women, and $30,000 for drill hall and gymnasium for men. Both buildings are completed and in use. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress.

Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the college to supply. Last year the matriculation was 750.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering and instruction in science.

The State College of Kentucky, though bearing hitherto the title of "college," is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing in any proper sense university work.

The completion of the college home for young women provides facilities for board and lodging. It is equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath rooms and room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to them of a thorough education in classics, modern languages, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history and political economy. No other institution in the State offers advantages for educational women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

From the press of the Ashland (Ky) Independent will soon be published "In the Shadows of the Cumberland," by Fred W. Powers. The book is one that deals with life in Eastern Kentucky, more especially the mountainous part, and the author being a native to the manor born, clothes many facts pertaining to feuds in very fascinating fiction. Mr. Powers is a young man, but very thoroughly imbued with the subjects upon which he writes, and either the magnetism of the man or the fascination of the story he tells compels close attention to his narrative. That there is pathos, also, may be judged by this sentence: "But out of it all there rises the sweet and earnest face of mother—kindly, patient and fond—a face I dearly love." Every reader in this section should read the story, and you may learn all particulars as to price, etc., by addressing The Independent, Ashland, Ky.

WANTED.—A woman to cook, wash and iron for family of three; no children. A good home and the best wages. Apply at this office.

THE announcement of Greenberry Stamper, of Campton, who is an aspirant for the office of County Attorney, appears in our paper today. He is a young man who is self-made. He taught school when only 15 years of age, and was a teacher in Campton High School for years. He has been a practicing attorney for 13 years, and for one of his experience is one of the best criminal lawyers in Eastern Kentucky. He has never asked for an office before, though in every campaign he has been a worker for the success of the Democratic ticket, a ticket that he votes "from end to end;" never scratches under any circumstances. That he is eminently qualified for the position is so patent that all know it, and the office being one of importance, it should be filled by one who can appeal to juries as well as present the law. He can do both, and do them so well that should he be nominated and elected to the position, we predict that he will fill it to the entire satisfaction of the party and the people. He submits his claim to the primary, November 12, and will abide its result. As he is a young man of more than ordinary ability, he is destined within the next decade to make a name of which he and his friends may well feel proud, and we believe that he will be treated with fairness in that primary.

Loss of Vitality

Is loss of the principle of life, and is early indicated by failing appetite and diminishing strength and endurance. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest vitalizer—it acts on all the organs and builds up the whole system.

Death of an Estimable Woman.

The many friends of Aunt Georgeanna Amyx, as she was lovingly called by a host of friends, will regret to read the announcement of her death, the first intimation of which came to us in the following, which reached us on Saturday night last. THE HERALD sympathizes with the sorrowing ones and consoles them by pointing to Christ:

"Mrs. Georgeanna Amyx, who died at 12 o'clock, August 24, 1904, at her home in Amsterdam, Missouri, will take place at the Christian Church, Parker, Kansas, August 25, 1904, at 3 o'clock p. m. Services by Deaconess Sue Mitchell and Rev. Morison Nickell. Burial in Parker Cemetery."

She was formerly a resident of Kentucky, being the mother of Mrs. S. S. Combs, of Campton. She was the wife of Joseph H. Amyx, who lived on Red River, and died in January, 1893.

"One by one they are gathering home."

New Laws.

The acts of the Legislature, session of 1904, just issued, contain many new laws of general interest, among the most important being the following:

Providing for a uniform system of text books.

Requiring voters in towns of the fifth and sixth class to register.

Repealing that part of the exemption law which exempts the wages of persons not exceeding $50 a month from attachment or garnishment for debt.

Extending the term of the common school from 5 to 6 months.

Requiring a merchant to give five days notice in writing to each of his creditors before disposing of a stock in bulk.

Making it a felony of one to five years to steal $2 worth of chickens.

Submitting to the voters the question of whether or not they will abolish the secret ballot. This is to be voted on at the regular November election.

Reducing the number of trustees of a graded school from six to five.

Prohibiting the shooting of rabbits and squirrels between the fifteenth day of September and the fifteenth day of November.

Defining vagrancy and fixing the punishment at a fine of $10 or imprisonment for thirty days for the first offense, for the second offense and all subsequent offenses sixty days imprisonment, persons convicted being required to work at hard labor until fine and costs are satisfied. Vagrants are declared to be able bodied males with no trade, calling or profession, and no visible means of support, who habitually loiter or ramble; able-bodied males who fail or refuse to labor for the support of his family; able-bodied males who purposely desert their wives and children; any able-bodied male or female who habitually loiters about the streets or places of any village or town. Any court has jurisdiction to try vagrants.

Placing national banks on the same footing as State banks in the matter of taxation.

Creating the office of fish and game warden in each county and defining his duties.

Making it unlawful to sell whiskey by wholesale in local option districts.

Prohibiting the adulteration, mixing or branding of orchard grass seed and other seed.

Regulating the sale of fertilizer so that the tag on each package shall show the name of the manufacturer, the name of fertilizer, number of net pounds in each package, estimated value per hundred, and the minimum in percentage composition.

Allowing town marshals in towns of sixth class to discharge the duties of constables in the magisterial district in which the town is located.

Making it unlawful to buy, sell, or expose for sale wild turkeys, pheasants, grouse, partridge or quail killed within the State.

Making it unlawful to drive a horse hired from a liveryman a greater distance or for a longer time than that for which the horse is hired, and requiring liverymen to keep a register showing to whom every vehicle is hired, the time to be used, distance to be traveled and the exact hour of the day or night such vehicle is delivered to the person hiring it. The fine is $3 to $50 or imprisonment for thirty days, or both.

Changing the time of assessing property for taxation from September 1 to September 15.

Making it a fine of $25 to $50 to lodge for record any deed, mortgage or other by law to be recorded without disclosing the immediate source from which the grantor derived title. If the source or title be a deed or other writing, the deed offered for record shall refer to the former deed, and give the office, book and page where recorded and the date thereof, if dated. This law means that all deeds must be recorded, whether the owner wants it recorded or not, and if you have a deed in your possession that has not been recorded you had better have it put on record without delay.

Two hundred illustrations, all on coated paper, in a single number, registers high-water mark in magazine illustration. In addition to this, twenty-five articles covering almost every phase and salient point of the World's Fair, and all this in the most perfect form of magazine art—every photo-engraving re-engraved by noted artist engravers; the paper and presswork of the best—all for ten cents. In its September issue, devoted entirely to the World's Fair, The "Cosmopolitan" has excelled its famous Chicago issue, which, after edition was nearly exhausted, sold for one dollar a copy.

A Worker for the Master.

A. A. Higgins, of Stanford, a graduate of Centre College, Danville, and a student in the Presbyterian Seminary at Louisville, spent two months here in the interest of the church, and left yesterday for his home. He organized a prayer meeting here and held night service every Sunday; he preached on Gillmore several times and held a morning service at Daysboro each Sunday. At the latter place he also organized a Union Sunday School with seventy scholars. In fact, during the time he spent here he was an earnest worker in the cause of Christ, and gave every evidence that in time to come he will be numbered with the foremost of the Master's servants by virtue of his untiring, earnest work. His course in the Seminary will require three years' study, after which he will enter upon his chosen calling, and that he will do valiant service in the vineyard of the Master is the prediction of all who have here met him. God speed him, and so mote it be.
